DRAWING and PAINTING.

An ARTIST offers his services to the young Ladies and Gentlemen of Newport, and its vicinity, and informs them, that he intends to open an ACADEMY, where he will teach the following polite Arts, viz.

LANDSCAPE Painting, in Oil and Water-Colours.—Painting with Gray-tons; together with the Art of preparing the Pañils.—The Art of Painting (not only in Oil, but Water-Colours on Silks) of various descriptions, to imitate Tambour.—That truly elegant method of bordering and ornamenting fine Mullins with fix'd Colours, which will bear Washing.—Painting and Gilding Emblems, of every description, on Leather of different colours.—Ornamental Painting and Gilding on Wood, Canvas, Tin, Glafs, &c. &c.—Enamel'd Gilding and Silvering on Glafs—picture-frame Gilding, &c. &c.—Different ways of Varnishing, by new discoveries, for the use of the above described Arts.—Likewise the preparation of Oil and Water-Colours, by a peculiar method.—The art of varnishing maps, charts, prints, &c. &c.

Those ladies and gentlemen who wish to be instructed in the above (much approved arts) may know the terms, by applying at Mr. William R. Wilder's Book-Store, in Thames-street; where the proposals are placed for the inspection of all those who wish to obtain a knowledge of the above arts.

N. B. Twenty subscribers will be an inducement to prepare an elegant apartment, in a central part of the town, for the accommodation of those ladies and gentlemen who wish to become pupils.
Newport, Nov. 11, 1800.

FOR SALE.

THE property of the subscriber, situated in the town of Rinebeck (county of Dutchess, and State of New-York, on Hudson's-River) 100 miles above the city of New-York, and 30 below the city of Hudson.—Consisting of a FARM, containing about 100 Acres, well proportioned into Meadow, Plough and Wood-Land.—On the Farm is a very extensive Orchard of the best fruit, and upwards of 100 barrels of Cider is made annually, beside winter fruit.—A good Dwelling-House, Barn, and Out-houses, all in good repair.—The farm is pleasantly situated on the bank of the river, and is an elegant situation for a country seat.—The soil and produce equal to any in the country.

Also the Ferry across the Hudson river, commonly known by the name of Elopus-Ferry, which is not exceeded in business by any on the river. It is the main crossing-place, from the Northward and Eastward, to the Western Country, and particularly the common and best rout to Philadelphia—Ohio—Kentucky—New-Connecticut, Suffolkham and Delaware.—It is perhaps the most public Ferry on the North-River.—The Mail crosses it three times every week for Philadelphia, and the business is daily encreasing.

Also the Dock, Store and Landing, with three Dwelling-Houses adjoining (one of which was built last summer, and is handsomely situated, and neatly finished).—The Landing is advantageously situated, and commands a very extensive business.—The country surrounding it, is allowed to be equal to any in the State.—No place on the North-River is probably possessed of more advantages for trade, both from the populousness of the country, or the wealth of the country in general; and it is presumed that navigation might be pursued with the greatest advantage.

Also the Sloop Juno (if wanted with the property) burden about 40 tons; a new Vessel, built principally of live-oak and cedar.—This Sloop is now employed in carrying produce to and from New-York, and is in a very lucrative branch of business.

For further particulars, enquire of JOHN HAGADORN, Esq; Attorney at Law, at South-Kingstown, who can give particular information respecting the property—or the subscriber, on the premises who will give an indisputable title.—It will be sold, either separate or together, as may suit the purchaser, and payments made easy.

JOHN RADCLIFFE.

SAMUEL F. GARDNER.

Newport, Sept. 29, 1800.

SIR,
The profanation complained of, by the author of a piece in the General Advertiser, for the month of January last, published in London, being under the name of our stage, especially since the introduction of the play of Vol. 1, you are requested, for the purpose of rectifying this evil, and for the satisfaction of many of your patrons, to insert the following extracts. Other printers, who wish to promote piety, are hereby desired to publish the same.

"THE Advertiser have a saying, that it is not good to jest with God;—and it was enjoined by Plato and other Heathen authors, that the name of God be treated lightly, rashly, irreverently, or without weighty and sufficient cause.—Under the Mosaic Law (which the founder of Christianity came not to destroy, but to fulfil) a solemn ordinance was delivered, to all generations, that 'the name of the Lord their God should not be taken in vain.' It appears, notwithstanding this, that we cherish less veneration, for what was commanded to be held sacred, than did the Oriental or the Pagan philosophers, or how could we sit in crowds, to hear the name of the Most High profaned in our public assemblies? We cannot (to use the late expression of a British critic) we cannot even 'a stronger symptom of a want of habitual and due reverence for the Deity, than by this quiescent endurance of what we know, may, of what we feel to be wrong.—For I am persuaded, that numbers, who mingle in the audience of our Theatres, for the purpose of harmless recreation, are touched with secret compunction, when they hear that hallowed name, at which Angels tremble while they utter, familiarly put into the mouths of our mimic heroes and heroines.

In the age of Elizabeth, this gross impropriety was loudly censured by cotemporary writers; and in the reign of James, a prohibitory statute was enacted, which imposed proper penalties, on all who should profanely use the name of God, in any play.—Now, I insist, that any mention of that name, in any dramatic performance, must come within the meaning of this statute, and constitutes profanation, from 'taking that name in vain.'

At the close of the last century, the acute and learned Collier exerted his literary efforts in stemming the profaneness of the stage; and he exerted them successfully, though the wits were all against him.—Dryden pleaded guilty to the charge. Congreve and Vanbrugh, attempted answers, says Dr. Johnson; but at last comedy grew more modest, and Collier lived to see the reward of his labour. 'From this period,' adds the late excellent editor of Dodley's old plays, may be dated the introduction of that more refined taste, which hath done so much credit to the British Theatre. That 'refined taste' is, I fear, again in danger of a revolution. The profanation above complained of, carries my recollection back to the 'Chapter of Accidents' in 1780. Since then, the evil hath rapidly increased. Our ears are violated by it, in the popular drama of Pizarro; in 'The Red Cross Knights'; in 'Management'; and probably in many other pieces, with which I am unacquainted.—The paraphrases of Heaven, Providence, &c. are no longer employed, with the same decorous propriety, as formerly; but the sacred name of that 'High and Holy One, who inhabiteth Eternity,' is uttered, without any rhetorical apology.—Let it not be urged, in a Christian country, by those who call themselves 'lovers of the drama,' that such impiety contributes to lighten, in shameless extenuation, that a few formal individuals, like myself, are the only people who feel disgust on these occasions.—God is not to be mocked: man must not trifle with his Maker; and if only a few individuals should feel repugnant, when the Majesty of Heaven is insulted; reformation becomes highly necessary, to preserve those few from the influence of public contagion. That indifference, which proceeds from familiarity with whatever demands our reverential awe, is to be most deprecated; and, if our theatres transgress those bounds of moral decorum which our national religion prescribes, they call for judicial interference from the guardians of the public weal."

LATEST FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

The Editor of the Baltimore American announces the receipt of London papers to October 10, by the American, arrived at Philadelphia. The following are among the extracts which he makes from them:

LONDON, Oct. 10.

Fire at Wapping.
The progress of a dreadful fire at Wapping, High-street, was stopped on Monday by pulling down some buildings. It began about 10 o'clock, at Mr. J. Tully and S. P. and S. P. and S. P.

The houses in the spot where the fire was raging, were so extremely narrow, that the engines, when they arrived, had no room to play, and every attempt to get the flames under was fruitless. The houses were so close together, that the fire spread so rapidly, that the engines could not get near them. The fire was so violent, that the houses were so close together, that the engines could not get near them.

The churchyard on this occasion, was a very convenient receptacle for all the bodies that were conveyed there, which were vigilantly protected by the Wapping corps, under the command of Captain Batton, and the Union corps, Capt. William Mellish, who remained under arms from 7 o'clock in the morning till 1 at night. The damages sustained by this conflagration are valued at 200,000*l.*

DUBLIN, October 4.

The Industry, of Boston, was on the 24th ult. driven on the North-Bull, owing to the severity of the storm. The situation of the crew was highly calamitous; several feet of water in the hold, and no prospect of saving the vessel. The weather was so harsh, it was thought impossible to send relief; at length the Lovely Mary, of Clontarf, put out, and reached the side of the American, with great difficulty; the master of the wherry, who is as good a pilot as he is a man, perceived it was impossible to save the vessel; but performed the duty of a brave and humane seaman, by bringing the crew to shore. The name of the Pilot is William Archbold.

CARLSRUH, September 27.

[By an extraordinary courier.]
Early this morning an Austrian courier passed through this city, who was sent off the day before yesterday from the Austrian head quarters, to proceed with all dispatch to Strasbourg and Paris. By the way, he met two French couriers, who were going to General Moreau, and from whom he learned that new propositions of peace had been transmitted from Buonaparte, which the Emperor had accepted and ratified. A French courier from Munich to Paris passed through this city, who said he carried orders to transmit, by the Telegraph from Strasbourg, intelligence of the signing of the preliminaries of peace.

RATISBON, September 28.

A letter by an extraordinary Courier.
The Emperor has ratified the preliminaries of peace which were signed at Paris on the 23th of July, by the French Minister, Talleyrand, and Count St. Julien.—They were ratified at Ault Oettingen, and Munich, in the Austrian and French headquarters, on the 20th inst.

Peace will again be restored. France obtains the Rhine for the boundary; and the Emperor, as a guarantee of his sincere desire for peace, gives the French possession of the fortresses of Ingolstadt, Philipburg, and Ulm, till the definitive treaty shall be concluded. The French army will likewise still keep its present position.

CHARLESTON, October 30.

General Pringle yesterday arrived in this city, from Virginia. He was met without the city by a party of light-horse, who escorted him to the house of his Sister, Mrs. Horry, in Tradd-street, where he alighted.

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 11.

A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

On Saturday evening the citizens of Washington and Georgetown were alarmed by the cry of fire. It broke out in a handsome three-story building, the property of Mr. Joseph Hodgson, occupied by the war department.

The fire caught in a room on the second floor and raged with such violence as to render it impracticable to extinguish it. The papers in the lower story only were saved.

The loss to the War Office is, in some respects, irreparable. Most of the papers of the Accountant's Office were saved. Mr. Hodgson's loss is more than 4000*l.* Dollars. The adjoining house built by Mr. Jonathan Jackson, also fell a prey to the devouring flames, here was a scene of grief and terror which affected every feeling heart. Mr. Jackson after several weeks illness, died that afternoon about 3 o'clock. In less than four hours after this affecting, this heart-rending scene, the family were alarmed by the cry of fire, the corpse is hastily removed and the widow and children are hurried out of their house which can no longer be a home for them. Thus in one day are they deprived of a husband and a father, whose active industry, while living, afforded them a competent support, and a valuable help, which would have preserved them from want, is rendered of no value.

Such a loss with such a bereavement, surely calls for public assistance and it is hoped, some influential and active citizens, will set on foot a subscription for their relieve.—There can be no doubt of liberal contributions if the business is commenced immediately.

The remains of Mr. Jackson were interred on Sunday afternoon.—They were attended to the grave by a very long procession of citizens.

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTORS.

PHILADELPHIA, November 12.
We learn from Lancaster, that the bill for choosing Electors of President and Vice-President by a joint vote was sent up to the Senate on Tuesday, and made the order for Wednesday. On Wednesday, after a long debate, Mr. Gurney proposed the annexed bill as a substitute. This motion was seconded by Mr. Johnson, and agreed to—12 to 11. The bill was twice read on Wednesday, and was probably sent to the lower House in the course of yesterday.

The yeas and nays in the Senate were as follows:—

8 Joseph McClellan	8 John Pearson
9 S. Postlethwaite	9 Wm. Reid
10 Zebulon Potts	10 W. Redman
11 Richard Smith	11 Benjamin Say
12 Dennis Whelen
13 John Woods.

An Act to Direct, on behalf of this State, the manner of appointing the Electors of a President and Vice-President of the United States.

Whereas it is declared by the Constitution of the United States, that, for the purpose of Electing a President and Vice-President of the United States, 'each State shall appoint in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of Electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in Congress, 'to the intent thereof, that the State may not be deprived of her vote, in the choice of the Chief Magistrate of the Union; but without meaning that the provisions of this act shall hereafter be drawn into precedent;

SECT. 1. And be it therefore enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That, the Electors to elect, on behalf of the State of Pennsylvania, a President and Vice-President of the United States at the next ensuing Election, for that purpose to be holden shall on the fifteenth day of November inst. be appointed by the Legislature of this Commonwealth; that is to say, seven by the Senate and eight by the House of Representatives, certificates of such appointment in each house shall be made out and signed by the Speaker, and forthwith presented by the Clerk thereof to the Governor of the Commonwealth, who shall declare by Proclamation the names of the persons so appointed.

SECT. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the Governor shall cause a notification of their election to be delivered in writing to each and every of the electors appointed as aforesaid, on or before the twenty-second day of November instant, the expence whereof shall be defrayed and paid on a warrant or warrants drawn by him on the State Treasurer, and the said Electors shall assemble on the first Wednesday in December next, at the Court-House in the Borough of Lancaster, and shall then and there perform the duties enjoined upon them by the Constitution and laws of the United States.

SECT. 3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each of the said electors shall receive three dollars daily wages when travelling to and remaining at, and returning from the place of meeting aforesaid; the same to be paid by the Treasurer of the State, or the Treasurer of the County in which the said electors respectively reside, on a warrant or warrants signed by the President of the Meeting of the said electors, if any they shall choose, or by a majority of such electors, exclusively of the person in whose favour the warrant is drawn, and all sums paid as aforesaid by the Treasurer of any county within this State, shall be allowed to him on behalf of said county in the settlement of his accounts with the State Treasurer.

November 17.

We learn from Lancaster, that on Friday morning, the Bill for appointing Electors of President and Vice-President was returned by the House of Representatives to the Senate, but the Senate being unwilling to recede from their amendments, the House of Representatives, in the afternoon, appointed a committee of conference to meet one from the Senate, which also appointed a committee. The committees of the respective Houses met in the evening, and, after some time, adjourned without coming to any agreement.

NEWARK, November 17.

The bill for general election of members of Congress for the State of New Jersey, passed into a law. While the bill was pending before the House of Assembly a motion was made to amend the bill by adding the following section:—'That it be the true intent and meaning of this act, that the inspectors of the several Townships of this State, shall not refuse the vote of any widow or a married woman of full age, nor any person of full age, provided each of them persons shall make it appear, either in writing, or to the satisfaction of the inspectors, that he or she is worth a certain estate, proclama-tion money of this State.'

The House almost unanimously agreed that this section would be clearly within the meaning of the Constitution, and as a confirmation in the guide of the inspectors it would be entirely useless to insert it in the law. The motion was consequently gratified.

Our Constitution gives this right to male or widows black or white.

NEW-YORK, November 18.

A letter from John Jay, Esq; in answer to the request of his friends, soliciting him as a candidate at the next election for Governor of this State, contains his declining to do so, and a desire to retire from public life at the expiration of his present term.

George Clinton, Esq; late Governor of this State, is holding a meeting at the residence of the first Judge of the Court.

It has been publicly notified from the Treasury Department, that a Circular Office is now being issued at the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, under whose management the collection of the SIR,
The profanation complained of, by the author of a piece in the Gentleman's Magazine, for the month of January last, published in London, being much practised on our stage, especially since the introduction of the plays of Von Kotzebue, you are requested, for the purpose of correcting this evil, and for the satisfaction of many of your patrons, to insert the following extracts. Other printers, who wish to promote piety, are hereby desired to publish the same.

"THE Asiatics have a saying, that 'it is not good to jest with God';—and it was enjoined by Plato and other Heathen authors, that the name of God be used lightly, rashly, irreverently, or without weighty and sufficient cause.—Under the Mosaic Law (which the founder of Christianity came not to destroy, but to fulfil) a solemn ordinance was delivered; to all generations, that 'the name of the Lord their God should not be taken in vain.' It appears, notwithstanding this, that we cherish less veneration, for what was commanded to be held sacred, than did the Oriental or the Pagan philosophers, or how could we fit in crowds, to hear the name of the Most High profaned in our public assemblies? We cannot (to use the late expression of a British critic) we cannot evince 'a stronger symptom of a want of habitual and due reverence for the Deity, than by this quiescent endurance of what we know, nay, of what we feel to be wrong.—For I am persuaded, that numbers, who mingle in the audience of our Theatres, for the purpose of harmless recreation, are touched with secret compunction, when they hear that hallowed name, at which Angels tremble while they utter, familiarly put into the mouths of our mimic heroes and heroines.

In the age of Elizabeth, this gross impropriety was loudly censured by cotemporary writers; and in the reign of James, a prohibitory statute was enacted, which imposed proper penalties, on all who should profanely use the name of God, in any play.—Now, I insist, that any mention of that name, in any dramatic performance, must come within the meaning of this statute, and constitutes profanation, from 'taking that name in vain.'

At the close of the last century, the acute and learned Collier exerted his literary efforts in stemming the profaneness of the stage; and he exerted them successfully, though the wits were all against him.—Dryden pleaded guilty to the charge. Congreve and Vanbrugh, attempted answers, says Dr. Johnson; but at last comedy grew more modest, and Collier lived to see the reward of his labour. 'From this period,' adds the late excellent editor of Dodley's old plays, may be dated the introduction of that more refined taste, which hath done so much credit to the British Theatre. That 'refined taste' is, I fear, again in danger of a revolution. The profanation above complained of, carries my recollection back to the 'Chapter of Accidents' in 1780. Since then the evil hath rapidly increased. Our ears are violated by it, in the popular drama of 'Pizarro,' in 'The Red Cross Knights,' in 'Management,' and probably in many other pieces, with which I am unacquainted.—The paraphrases of Heaven, Providence, &c. are no longer employed, with the same decorous propriety, as formerly; but the sacred name of that 'High and Holy One, who inhabiteth Eternity,' is uttered, without any rhetorical apology.—Let it not be urged, in a Christian country, by those who call themselves 'lovers of the drama,' that such impiety contributes to heighten the stage effect.—Let it not be offered, in shameless extenuation, that a few formal individuals, like myself, are the only people who feel disgust on these occasions.—God is not to be mocked: man must not trifle with his Maker: and if only a few individuals should feel repugnant, when the Majesty of Heaven is insulted; reformation becomes highly necessary, to preserve those few from the influence of public contagion. That indifference, which proceeds from familiarity with whatever demands our reverential awe, is to be most deprecated; and, if our theatres transgress those bounds of moral decorum which our national religion prescribes, they call for judicial interference from the guardians of the public weal."

LATEST FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

The Editor of the Baltimore American announces the receipt of London papers to October 10, by the American, arrived at Philadelphia. The following are among the extracts which he makes from them:

L O N D O N, Oct. 10.

Fire at Wapping.

The progress of a dreadful fire at Wapping, High-street, was stopped on Monday by pulling down some buildings. It began on the premises of Messrs. J. Tiddy and S. Barbe, Ship Chandlers.

The avenues to the spot where the fire was venting its fury were so extremely narrow, that the engines, when they arrived, had scarce room to play, and every attempt to get the flames under were unavailing.

Things were so alarming an aspect in the early part of the day, that the greater number of the inhabitants of the neighbourhood moved their goods, &c. to Wapping church-yard for safety.

The church-yard on this occasion, was a very convenient receptacle for the life who had time and means to convey their effects there, which were vigilantly protected by the Wapping corps, under the command of Captain Batillon, and the Union corps, Capt. William Mellish, who remained under arms from 7 o'clock in the morning till 1 at night. The damages sustained by this conflagration are valued at 200,000 l.

D U B L I N, October 4.

The Industry, of Boston, was on the 24th ult. driven on the North-Bull, owing to the severity of the storm. The situation of the crew was highly calamitous; several feet of water in the hold, and no prospect of saving the vessel. The weather was so harsh, it was thought impossible to send relief; at length the Lovely-Mary wherry, of Clontarf, put out, and reached the side of the American, with great difficulty; the master of the wherry, who is as good a pilot as he is a man, perceived it was impossible to save the vessel; but performed the duty of a brave and humane seaman, by bringing the crew to shore. The name of the Pilot is William Archold.

CARLSRUHE, Sept. 27.

[By an extraordinary courier.]

Early this morning an Austrian courier passed through this city, who was sent off the day before yesterday from the Austrian head quarters, to proceed with all dispatch to Straßburg and Paris. By the way, he met two French couriers, who were going to General Moreau, and from whom he learned that new propositions of peace had been transmitted from Buonaparte, which the Emperor had accepted and ratified. A French courier from Munich to Paris passed through this city, who said he carried orders to transmit, by the Telegraph from Straßburg, intelligence of the signing of the preliminaries of peace.

RATISBON, September 28.

A letter by an extraordinary Courier.

The Emperor has ratified the preliminaries of peace which were signed at Paris on the 28th of July, by the French Minister, Talleyrand, and Count St. Julien.—They were ratified at Ault Oettingen, and Munich, in the Austrian and French headquarters, on the 20th inst.

Peace will again be restored. France obtains the Rhine for the boundary; and the Emperor, as a guarantee of his sincere desire for peace, gives the French possession of the fortresses of Ingolstadt, Philippsburg, and Ulm, till the definitive treaty shall be concluded. The French army will likewise still keep its present position.

CHARLESTON, October 30.

General PICKENS yesterday arrived in this city, from Virginia. He was met without the city by a party of light-horse, who escorted him to the house of his Sister, Mrs. Horry, in Tradd-street, where he alighted.

GEORGE-TOWN, Nov. 17.

A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

On Saturday evening the citizens of Washington and George-Town were alarmed by the cry of fire. It broke out in a handsome three-story building, the property of Mr. Joseph Hodgson, occupied by the war department.

The fire caught in a room on the second floor and raged with such violence as to render it impracticable to extinguish it. The papers in the lower story only were saved.

The loss to the War Office is, in some respects, irreparable. Most of the papers of the Accountant's Office were saved. Mr. Hodgson's loss is more than 4000 Dollars.

The adjoining house built by Mr. Jonathan Jackson, also fell a prey to the devouring flames, here was a scene of grief and terror which affected every feeling heart. Mr. Jackson after several weeks illness, died that afternoon about 3 o'clock. In less than four hours after this affecting, this heart-rending scene, the family are alarmed by the cry of fire, the corpse is hastily removed and the widow and children are hurried out of their house which can no longer be a home for them. Thus in one day are they deprived of a husband and a father, whose active industry, while living, afforded them a competent support, and a valuable house, which would have preserved them from want, is rendered of no value.

Such a loss with such a bereavement, surely calls for public assistance and it is hoped, some influential and active citizens, will set on foot a subscription for their relief.—There can be no doubt of liberal contributions, if the business is commenced immediately.

The remains of Mr. Jackson were interred on Sunday afternoon.—They were attended to the grave by a very long procession of citizens.

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTORS.

PHILADELPHIA, November 14.

We learn from Lancaster, that the Bill for choosing Electors of President and Vice-President by a joint vote was sent up to the Senate on Tuesday, and made the order for Wednesday. On Wednesday, after some debate, Mr. Gurney proposed the annexed bill as a substitute. This motion was seconded by Mr. Johnston, and agreed to—13 to 11. The bill was twice read on Wednesday, and was probably sent to the lower House in the course of yesterday.

The yeas and nays in the Senate were as follows:—

An Act to Direct, on behalf of this State, the manner of appointing the Electors of a President and Vice-President of the United States.

Whereas it is declared by the Constitution of the United States, that, for the purpose of Electing a President and Vice-President of the United States, 'each state shall appoint in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the state may be entitled in Congress, 'to the intent thereof, that the state may not be deprived of her vote, in the choice of the Chief Magistrate of the Union; but without meaning that the provisions of this act shall hereafter be drawn into precedent;

SECT. 1. And be it therefore enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That, the Electors to elect, on behalf of the State of Pennsylvania, a President and Vice-President of the United States at the next ensuing Election, for that purpose to be holden shall on the fifteenth day of November inst. be appointed by the Legislature of this Commonwealth; that is to say, seven by the Senate and eight by the House of Representatives, certificates of such appointment in each house shall be made out and signed by the Speaker, and forthwith presented by the Clerk thereof to the Governor of the Commonwealth, who shall declare by Proclamation the names of the persons so appointed.

SECT. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the Governor shall cause a notification of their election to be delivered in writing to each and every of the electors appointed as aforesaid, on or before the twenty-second day of November instant, the expence whereof shall be defrayed and paid on a warrant or warrants drawn by him on the State Treasurer, and the said Electors shall assemble on the first Wednesday in December next, at the Court-House in the Borough of Lancaster, and shall then and there perform the duties enjoined upon them by the Constitution and laws of the United States.

SECT. 3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each of the said electors shall receive three dollars daily wages when travelling to and remaining at, and returning from the place of meeting aforesaid; the same to be paid by the Treasurer of the State, or the Treasurer of the County in which the said electors respectively reside, on a warrant or warrants signed by the President of the Meeting of the said electors, if any they shall choose, or by a majority of such electors, exclusively of the person in whose favour the warrant is drawn, and all sums paid as aforesaid by the Treasurer of any county within this State, shall be allowed to him on behalf of said county in the settlement of his accounts with the State Treasurer.

November 17.

We learn from Lancaster, that on Friday morning, the Bill for appointing Electors of President and Vice-President was returned by the House of Representatives to the Senate, but the Senate being unwilling to recede from their amendments, the House of Representatives, in the afternoon, appointed a committee of conference to meet one from the Senate, which also appointed a committee. The committees of the respective Houses met in the evening, and, after some time, adjourned without coming to any agreement.

NEWARK, November 17.

The bill for a general election of members of Congress for the state of New-Jersey, has passed into a law. While the aforesaid bill was pending before the House of Assembly a motion was made to amend the bill by adding the following section thereto, viz.— "That it is the true intent and meaning of this act, that the inspectors of election in the several Townships of this state, shall not refuse the vote of any widow or unmarried woman of full age, nor any person of colour of full age, provided each of the said persons shall make it appear on oath or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the said inspectors, that he or she is worth £50 clear estate, proclamation money of this state."

The House almost unanimously agreed that this section would be clearly within the meaning of the Constitution, and as the constitution is the guide of the inspectors, it would be entirely useless to insert it in the law. The motion was consequently negatived.

Our Constitution gives this right to maids or widows black or white.

NEW-YORK, November 18.

A letter from John Jay, Esq; in answer to the request of his friends, soliciting him as a candidate at the next election for Governor of this State, contains his ultimate declaration; and a desire to retire from all public offices at the expiration of his present Governorship.

George Clinton, Esq; late Governor of this State, is held up as a candidate for the same office at the ensuing election.

It has been publicly rumored from the Treasury Department, that a General Stamp Office is now established at the seat of Government in the city of Washington, from whence will issue in future (upon the application of the Supervisors of the Revenue, under whose management the collection of the duties is placed) all paper, parchment, or vellum, marked or stamped, and duly counter-signed, according to a Law of Congress. By virtue of which law the powers of the Supervisors of the Revenue to mark or stamp any vellum, parchment, or paper chargeable with duty will cease and determine from and after the first day of February, 1801. And if any person shall, after the first day of February, 1801, have in their custody or possession, any vellum, parchment, or paper marked or stamped by the Supervisors of the Revenue, upon which any matter or thing, charged with duty, shall not have been written or printed, they may at any time within the space of sixty days after the said last day of February, 1801, bring or send such vellum, parchment, and paper, unto some office of inspection, and in lieu thereof, receive a like quantity or value of vellum, parchment, and paper, duly stamped in pursuance of the act herein before recited.

And in case any person shall neglect or refuse, within the time aforesaid, to bring or send to be brought unto some office of inspection any such vellum, parchment or paper, it is declared, that the same will thereafter be of no other effect or use than if it had never been marked or stamped; and that all matters and things which may after that time be written or printed upon any vellum, parchment, or paper, authorized to be exchanged in manner aforesaid, will be to no other effect than if they had been written or printed on paper, parchment or vellum, not marked or stamped. And for the convenience of those persons who may be inclined to have their own vellum, parchment and paper stamped or marked, it is declared, that when any person shall deposit any vellum, parchment or paper, at the office of a supervisor, accompanied with a list specifying the number and denominations of the stamps or marks which are desired to be thereto affixed, the same will be transmitted to the General Stamp Office, and there properly marked or stamped, and forthwith sent back to the same supervisor, who will thereupon collect the duties and deliver the paper, parchment or vellum to the order of the person from whom the same was received.

We hourly expect intelligence of the arrival of the Portsmouth frigate, Captain M'Neal, with the Commissioners from France.

VERGENNES (Vermont) Oct. 10.

Extract from the Answer of the House of Representatives to the Governor's Speech.

"Fully apprized of the singular importance given to the present session of the Legislature, by the consideration that a Session in Congress, and Electors of President and Vice-President of the United States are now to be appointed, we shall employ our patriotism in the parts we are called to take in this important transaction, and we sincerely pray, that the persons chosen may execute the important trust reposed in them, with wisdom and fidelity. "It is indeed as you were pleased to express it, 'sincerely to be hoped that the importance of the crisis, may induce the Electors, when chosen, to unite their voices in men who are attached to their country, and who are ready to order and govern, and who can hardly conceive of an event so calamitous to be deprecated, than the election of President of the United States, of a man deficient of the sentiments of an Independent American, or influenced in his administration, by a predilection for foreign principles, or for the government of any foreign nation. In this view, the United States have been greatly blessed in a Washington, and in an Adams. The first, removed by the all-wise disposition of Heaven, has left us to weep, in concert with our common country; the latter, by a late very important measure, has, uninfluenced either by the intrigue or violence of foreign party, exhibited the most decisive evidence, that he is exclusively an American. While our local situation recommends a neutral position, with respect to the contending nations of the old world, we wish our country always to extend equal privileges to them all, while her best and uninterrupted exertions shall be directed to the happiness of her own family.

"Fully persuaded, as we are, that no principles other than those of morality and religion, can be relied on to confine the passions, views and pursuits of men, within the bounds of reason, duty, integrity and good government, we wish to see them more and more supported, by the laws of this State, and encouraged by the examples of every character. Every age, every country, every state of human things, proclaims to us the importance of moral and christian principles; but none more audibly, than the late and present state of Europe, where the licentiousness of the subject conspires, with the ambition of the ruler, to prostrate morality, degrade christianity, and eradicate human feelings from the heart. Although sad experience too clearly evinces that learning, if not subjected to these principles, is too apt to be made subservient to the very worst of purposes, yet, when under the direction of christian principles, it is incalculably ornamental and useful to man. In this view, we feel the importance of cherishing literature, and the superior importance of cultivating those principles which alone can give it a proper direction.

"Thankful to heaven for the blessings we have enjoyed under the administration of a WASHINGTON and ADAMS, we devoutly implore the same wisdom, goodness and power, to direct our elections, and our government; and to banish from us forever, calumny and detraction.

"Whether the pacific measures of our general government towards France shall or shall not be crowned with success, be assured Sir, we shall still continue at our post, around the standard of our country, and ardently hope that she, uninfluenced by favor on one hand, or hatred on the other, will always extend equal privileges to every nation on earth."

BOSTON, November 17,
On Friday night last, the U. States ship Boston, Capt. Little, arrived in the lower harbour and brought in with her a French Corvette, which she had captured in lat. 23, off Cayenne, after an engagement of four hours. The Boston, it is said, lost 4 men killed, and 7 wounded. The privateer mounts 24 long nine-pounders and two 12's, and had 250 men.

SMALL-POX.
The town of Marblehead is now in a state of inoculation for the Small-Pox. It is computed that there are upwards of three thousand persons who will undergo the operation. This circumstance has occasioned a total stagnation of business, and must be the means, at the inclement season, of creating new and poignant distress to a numerous class of the inhabitants, unless relieved by the charities of the wealthy.

The Hon. JONATHAN MASON is elected Senator of the United States for Massachusetts, in the place of the Hon. Benjamin Goodhue resigned.

The Hon. GEORGE THATCHER is re-elected Representative in Congress for the same State.

The Hon. WILLIAM BUTLER, and WILLIAM SMITH, Esquires, are also elected for South-Carolina.

New Members.

His Excellency BENJAMIN OGLE is unanimously re-elected Governor of the State of Maryland.—[Accounts from that State render it probable, that the Electors will be equally divided.—The Federalists, however, calculate on a majority of two.]

On Wednesday last, 19th inst. the Freemen of this State assembled in their respective towns, for the purpose of choosing, on the part of this State, four Electors of a President and Vice-President of the United States.—We have received accounts from every town in the State, from which the following statement is formed; and which will be found to be correct, within a very few votes.

We can therefore announce with certainty that
GEORGE CHAMPLIN,
EDWARD MANTON,
OLIVER DAVIS—and
WILLIAM GREENE, Esqrs.
are chosen Electors of President and Vice-President, for this State.

From an authentic source, we learn that the Convention concluded with France by our Envoys, does not adjust the past differences and claims of the two countries; but postpones that business till peace in Europe. It however puts an end to existing hostilities, and provides for an amicable intercourse during the war—as also a mode of determining causes that may occur relative to prizes.

Such a convention may be the more eligible at this time, as it precludes the probability of any uneasiness on the part of Great-Britain or the other powers at war.

LITERATURE.
The Legislature of Vermont have passed an act incorporating an University at Middlebury, in that State, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Smith, who is appointed President. The Students, on the evening of the 20th inst. were in the College building, and Mr. J. A. Smith, of Middlebury, was the speaker.

has issued proposals for publishing a magazine, monthly, to be entitled the Cabinet.—The names of several gentlemen, respectable for talents, are published as contributing to the proposed publication. We believe the work will be ably conducted, and presume it will excel any thing published in that form, which has yet appeared in this country. The names of the literati who are to furnish the original part of the Cabinet, are the Rev. Dr. Morse, Rev. John S. J. Gardner, Rev. T. M. Harris, George Blake, Esq; Joseph Dennie, Esq; and David Everett, Esq; Farmer's Museum.

A prospectus of a new publication, to be entitled the Connecticut Magazine, or Gentleman's and Lady's Monthly Museum, appears in a New-Haven paper. It is to be printed on an elegant paper and new type, and its typographical execution is intended to equal that of any British Magazine. The publisher is Mr. Lazarus Beach, of Newfield. The numbers are to issue from the press monthly, and will cost 25 cents each, containing 64 8vo pages. The first will make its appearance in February 1801.—One or more plates elegantly engraved will accompany each. The character of Connecticut as the nursery of genius ranks highly. If the above work be contributed to, as we presume it will be, by the gentlemen of literary leisure with which the state abounds, we doubt not that this publication will attach to it numerous patrons.

ed to their country, and who are friends to order and good government. We can hardly conceive of an event more devoutly to be deprecated, than the election for President of the United States, of a man deficient of the sentiments of an Independent American, or influenced in his administration, by a predilection for foreign principles, or for the government of any foreign nation. In this view, the United States have been greatly blessed in a WASHINGTON, and in an ADAMS. The first, removed by the all-wise disposition of Heaven, has left us to weep, in concert with our common country; the latter, by a late very important measure, has, uninfluenced either by the intrigue or violence of foreign party, exhibited the most decisive evidence, that he is exclusively an American. While our local situation recommends a neutral position, with respect to the contending nations of the old world, we wish our country always to extend equal privileges to them all, while her best and uninterrupted exertions shall be directed to the happiness of her own family.

"Fully persuaded, as we are, that no principles other than those of morality and religion, can be relied on to confine the passions, views and pursuits of men, within the bounds of reason, duty, integrity and good government, we wish to see them more and more supported, by the laws of this State, and encouraged by the examples of every character. Every age, every country, every state of human things, proclaims to us the importance of moral and christian principles; but none more audibly, than the late and present state of Europe, where the licentiousness of the subject conspires, with the ambition of the ruler, to prostrate morality, degrade christianity, and eradicate human feelings from the heart. Although sad experience too clearly evinces that learning, if not subjected to these principles, is too apt to be made subservient to the very worst of purposes, yet, when under the direction of christian principles, it is incalculably ornamental and useful to man. In this view, we feel the importance of cherishing literature, and the superior importance of cultivating those principles which alone can give it a proper direction.

"Thankful to heaven for the blessings we have enjoyed under the administration of a WASHINGTON and ADAMS, we devoutly implore the same wisdom, goodness and power, to direct our elections, and our government; and to banish from us forever, calumny and detraction.

"Whether the pacific measures of our general government towards France shall or shall not be crowned with success, be assured Sir, we shall still continue at our posts, around the standard of our country, and ardently hope that she, uninfluenced by favor on one hand, or hatred on the other, will always extend equal privileges to every nation on earth."

BOSTON, November 17,
On Friday night last, the U. States ship Boston, Capt. Little, arrived in the lower harbour and brought in with her a French Corvette, which she had captured in lat. 23, off Cayenne, after an engagement of four hours. The Boston, it is said, lost 4 men killed and 7 wounded. The privateer mounts 24 long nine-pounders and two 12's, and had 250 men.

November 20.
SMALL-POX.

The town of Marblehead is now in a state of inoculation for the Small-Pox. It is computed that there are upwards of three thousand persons who will undergo the operation. This circumstance has occasioned a total stagnation of business, and must be the means, at the inclement season, of creating new and poignant distress to a numerous class of the inhabitants, unless relieved by the charities of the wealthy.

New-York,	12

The Hon. JONATHAN MASON is elected Senator of the United States for Massachusetts, in the place of the Hon. Benjamin Goodhue resigned.

The Hon. GEORGE TROTTER is re-elected a Representative in Congress for the same State.

The Hon. WILLIAM BUTLER, and WILLIAM SMITH, Esquires, are also elected for South-Carolina, but their names are not yet ascertained.

* New Members.

His Excellency BENJAMIN OGLE is unanimously re-elected Governor of the State of Maryland.—[Accounts from that State render it probable, that the Electors will be equally divided.—The Federalists, however, calculate on a majority of two.]

On Wednesday last, 19th inst. the Free-men of this State assembled in their respective towns, for the purpose of choosing, on the part of this State, four Electors of a President and Vice-President of the United States.—We have received accounts from every town in the State, from which the following statement is formed; and which will be found to be correct, within a very few votes.

We can therefore announce with certainty that
GEORGE CHAMPLIN,
EDWARD MANTON,
OLIVER DAVIS—and
WILLIAM GREENE, Esqrs.
are chosen Electors of President and Vice-President, for this State.

From an authentic source, we learn that the Convention concluded with France by our Envoys, does not adjust the past differences and claims of the two countries; but postpones that business till peace in Europe. It however puts an end to existing hostilities, and provides for an amicable intercourse during the war—as also a mode of determining causes that may occur relative to prizes.

Such a convention may be the more eligible at this time, as it precludes the probability of any uneasiness on the part of Great-Britain or the other powers at war.

LITERATURE.

The Legislature of Vermont have passed an act incorporating an University at Middlebury, in that State, under the direction of Mr. J. Atwater, who is appointed President. The Students, on the evening succeeding the act of incorporation, had the College building brilliantly illuminated.

Mr. John Wallcut, Boston, Book-keeper

has issued proposals for publishing a magazine, monthly, to be entitled the Cabinet.—The names of several gentlemen, respectable for talents, are published as contributing to the proposed publication. We believe the work will be ably conducted, and presume it will excel any thing published in that form, which has yet appeared in this country. The names of the literati who are to furnish the original part of the Cabinet, are the Rev. Dr. Morse, Rev. John S. J. Gardner, Rev. T. M. Harris, George Blake, Esq; Joseph Dennie, Esq. and David Everett, Esq.

A prospectus of a new publication, to be entitled the Connecticut Magazine, or Gentleman's and Lady's Monthly Museum, appears in a New-Haven paper. It is to be printed on an elegant paper and new type, and its typographical execution is intended to equal that of any British Magazine. The publisher is Mr. Lazarus Beach, of Newfield. The numbers are to issue from the press monthly, and will cost 25 cents each, containing 64 8vo pages. The first will make its appearance in February 1801.—One or more plates elegantly engraved will accompany each. The character of Connecticut as the nursery of genius ranks highly. If the above work be contributed to, as we presume it will be, by the gentlemen of literary leisure with which the state abounds, we doubt not that this publication will attach to it numerous patrons.

Boston Com. Gaz.

DIED.—On the 7th inst. Mr. Christopher Townsend, son of Mr. John Townsend, in the 20th year of his age.

—“At Little-Compton, on the 8th inst. Mrs. Eunice Brownell, consort of Capt. Thomas Brownell, in the 77th year of her age, after a long and painful illness, through which she has given a bright example of piety and christian firmness.—She has left an aged husband to mourn his irreparable loss.”

[Of the early loves of SHAKESPEARE it is recorded that Anne Hathaway Warwickshire beauty, captivated the affections of the sanguine bard, who felt perhaps as he strolled with his rustic mistress on the banks of the Romantic Avon, that excess of tender passion, which he afterwards delineated in his Romeo. The following beautiful play upon the name of the interesting Anne is from the pen of Dibdin, who has described the perfections of a pretty woman, "in numbers, such as Shakespeare's self might use.")]

WOULD ye be taught, ye feather'd throng,
In loves sweet notes to grace your song,
To charm the heart in thrilling lay,
Listen to Ann Hath a way;
She hath a way to sing so clear,
Phœbus might wondering stoop and hear,
To melt the sad, makes blithe the gay,
And nature charm—Ann Hath a way,
She hath a way,
Ann Hath a way,

To breathe delight, Ann Hath a way—
When envy's breath, and rancour's tooth,
Do soil and blemish fair worth and truth,
And merit to distress betray;
To sooth the soul, Ann Hath a way—
She hath a way to chase despair,
To heal all grief, to cure all care,
Turn foulest night to fairest day
Thou know'st, fond heart, Ann Hath a way,
She hath, &c.

Talk not of gems, the orient lilt,
The diamond, topaz, amethyst
The emerald mild, the ruby gay
Talk of my gem, Ann Hath a way
She hath a way with her bright eye,
Their various lusters to defy,
The jewel she and the foil they,
So sweet to look Ann Hath a way
She hath, &c.

But to my fancy were it given
To rate her charms, I'd call them Heaven;
For, though a mortal made of clay—
Angels might love Ann Hath a way
She hath a way, so to controul,
To rapture the imprison'd soul,
And love and truth so to display,
That to be Heaven—Ann Hath a way.

Blank EXECUTIONS, and WRITS, for sale at the Office of the Newport Mercury.

[Of the early loves of SHAKESPEARE it is recorded that Anne Hathaway Warwickshire beauty, captivated the affections of the sanguine bard, who felt perhaps as he strolled with his rustic mistress on the banks of the Romantic Avon, that excess of tender passion, which he afterwards delineated in his Romeo. The following beautiful play upon the name of the interesting Anne is from the pen of Dibdin, who has described the perfections of a pretty woman, "in numbers, such as Shakespeare's self might use."]

WOULD ye be taught, ye feather'd throng,

In loves sweet notes to grace your song,
To charm the heart in thrilling lay,
Listen to Ann Hath a way;
She hath a way to sing so clear,
Phœbus might wondering stoop and hear,
To melt the sad, makes blithe the gay,
And nature charm—Ann Hath a way,
She hath a way,
Ann Hath a way,

To breathe delight, Ann Hath a way—
When envy's breath, and rancour's tooth,
Do foil and bite fair worth and truth,
And merit to distress betray;
To sooth the foul, Ann Hath a way.—
She hath a way to chafe despair,
To heal all grief, to cure all care,
Turn foulest night to fairest day
Thou know'st, fond heart, Ann Hath a way,
She hath, &c.

Talk not of gems, the orient lift,
The diamond, topaz, amethyst
The emerald mild, the ruby gay
Talk of my gem, Ann Hath a way
She hath a way with her bright eye,
Their various lustres to defy,
The jewel she and the foil they,
So sweet to look Ann Hath a way
She hath, &c.

But to my fancy were it given
To rate her charms, I'd call them Heaven;
For, though a mortal made of clay—
Angels might love Ann Hath a way
She hath a way, so to controul,
To rapture the imprison'd soul,
And love and truth so to display,
That to be Heaven—Ann Hath a way.
